Children's Literature in Education

Volume 29, Number 1 March 1998

The Silence of the Critics: A Symposium Kimberley Reynolds, Tony Watkins, Peter Hunt, Mick Saunders, and Christine Wilkie 1

Views on the absence of critical comment on living writers

Caught Between Two Worlds: Themes of Family, Community, and Ethnic Identity in Yoshiko Uchida's Works for Children Violet H. Harada 19

An exploration of the cultural universe created by a Japanese American author

"The City Spreads Its Wings": The Urban Experience in Poetry for Children David L. Russell 31

Three American poets explore and celebrate life in the city

One City, Two Worlds, and Yet . . . : New York from Roller Skates to Stevie Linnea Hendrickson 43

A changing city and changing ways of writing for children

Aristocratic Houses and Radical Politics: Historical Fiction and the Time-Slip Story in E. Nesbit's The House of Arden Linda Hall 51

Some uneasily contrasting elements in a classic novel

Children's Literature in Education

Volume 29, Number 2 June 1998

Oops!: Colin McNaughton and "Knowingness" David Lewis 59

A close look at the way an illustrator draws children into a special sense of being "in the know"

Doubletalk: A Literary Pairing of The Giver and We Are All in the Dumps with Jack and Guy Barbara A. Lehman and Patricia R. Crook 69

Moving back and forth between two books offers new ways of looking at each

Playing with Father: Anthony Browne's Picture Books and the Masculine Clare Bradford 79

The diversity of Browne's work provides children with a variety of insights into notions of gender

How Picture Books Work: A Semiotically Framed Theory of Text-Picture Relationships Lawrence R. Sipe 97

An investigation of the complexities of reading books that use more than one sign system

Death and Violence in Some Victorian School Reading Books Colin McGeorge 109

British and American nineteenth century classroom readers and their treatment of death

Children's Literature in Education

Volume 29, Number 3 September 1998

Women Behaving Badly: Dahl's Witches Meet the Women of the Eighties Anne-Marie Bird 119

The film version of Roald Dahl's The Witches and its representation of women

Beneath the Web and Over the Stream: The Search for Safe Places in Charlotte's Web and Bridge to Terabithia Sue Misheff 131

Female saviors and male redemption in two favorite stories

A Perilous Endeavor: The Riverbank and Beyond Mary Sutcliffe 143

An interview with William Horwood, creator of a best-selling series of sequels to The Wind in the Willows

Little Women* Go to Market: Shifting Texts and Changing Readers Margaret Mackey 153

Artistic and commercial influences on ways of reading

Children's Literature in Education

Volume 29, Number 4 December 1998

Trade and Plumb-Cake in Lilliput: The Origins of Juvenile Consumerism and Early English Children's Periodicals Janis Dawson 175

Two contrasting eighteenth-century children's magazines shed light on the history of consumerism among children

The Writer in Education Dudley Jones and Michael Lockwood 199

Six eminent writers—three novelists, three poets—talk about their visits to schools

The Ambivalent Urban Idyll: The Saturdays and Betsy and Tacy Go Downtown Claudia Mills 211

Cities as they used to be featured in two urban novels from the 1940s

The Pattern of Dead and Living: Lucy Boston and the Necessity of Continuity Linda Hall 223

Lucy Boston's time-slip novels offer children, and adults, a powerful and sensuous awareness of the past in the present

No Joe Marches Ruth Berman 237

Many books encourage girls to write; where are the stories about bookish boys?

Acknowledgments to Reviewers 249